A Message from RANWW Treasurer

It’s the little things in life that matter. Opening the door for someone, picking up milk on the way home, remembering someone’s favorite treat. Speaking of opening doors, this is something we do daily. Whether it’s a showing or a closing we are opening doors for our clients, customers and each other. Opening doors requires so much more then the turn of a key. It requires hard work, grit, determination and cooperation. Cooperation and courtesy go hand in hand. Sometimes we get so busy we forget the little things. Like calling the agent on the other side to give them a heads up an offer, counter, amendment is coming their way. Calling them when we set up a short notice showing. Calling an inspector with info that is helpful. Calling the lender just to introduce yourself. In this world of automated everything, texting and emailing personal touch often goes by the wayside.

We have all had it happen, a buyer calls and has to see a house right now. That’s exciting...but not always possible. When setting up short notice showings, call the listing agent to check. Not every seller has access to ShowingTime and their agent is the best resource for this info. You will save yourself a lot of time and anxiety waiting for the approval. When there are overlapping showings call the showing agent to let them know someone else will be there with a buyer. Some buyers don’t appreciate overlapping showings and would like to know up front.

Ever send a document, like a counter or amendment and not hear back from the other agent? Don’t assume your email went through. Common courtesy is to call to let the other party know the document is coming. This applies not only to agents but lenders and title companies too. You will be scrambling the day before closing if the title company doesn’t have all the information. Staying on top of paperwork is hard enough some days and when there is a breakdown in communication it can be very time consuming on the back end.

Communication is a two-way street. When everything is automated with text requests for showings, emailing of documents communication can breakdown. Keeping the lines of communication open is fairly easy. Don’t be afraid of each other, make time to call each other.

Your transactions may go smoother and you may make a new friend.

Enjoy the rest of summer!

14 Simple Steps for Safeguarding Your Office

By now, you are aware of potential dangers that face real estate agents when they are meeting clients, showing properties or hosting open houses, and in their cars. There is one more place to consider: the office where you work.

You can help safeguard your business’s (and your personal) property, and the safety of all who work in the office, with a few procedures and precautions:

1. Know staff in other nearby businesses and be aware of their schedules.
2. Ensure that all doors other than the main entrance are secured.
3. Make certain windows are not obscured so that passersby can see in.
4. Make sure there is a clear exit route from the service desk to the door.
5. Never allow visitors to wander freely about the business. Have the person whom they want to see come to the front office area and escort the individual to the meeting area.
6. Have a visitor log book and policy on issuing visitor tags that limit access to certain areas and hours of the day.
7. If you encounter an individual while working late or alone, indicate to that person that you are not alone. Say something like, “My supervisor will be right with you and should be able to assist you.”
8. Keep personal information private. Avoid discussing where you live, after-work or vacation plans in front of customers, new coworkers or anyone in general with whom you are not comfortable.
9. Never leave valuables, purses or wallets tucked behind counters or on desks.
10. Lock away personal letterhead and business cards to avoid use by unauthorized people.
11. Mark equipment for easy identification in the event of theft or damage. Maintain an inventory of all marked items.
12. Lock up audio/visual equipment when not in use.
13. Secure spare and master keys in locked cabinets.
14. Protect client information. Most offices keep sensitive personal information on their computers and/or in paper files—names, Social Security numbers, credit card or other account data—that identifies customers or employees. If this sensitive data falls into the wrong hands, it can lead to fraud or identity theft.

The REALTORS® Political Action Committee (RPAC) is celebrating its 50th anniversary in 2019! Since 1969, RPAC has been working to advance the American Dream of property ownership. RPAC protects homeownership and the real estate industry by electing pro-REALTOR® and pro-real estate candidates for public office. RPAC dollars are used on the federal, state and local level to support candidates who support issues that are critical to the future of real estate and REALTORS®. To support these efforts, and to celebrate RPAC’s 50th anniversary, the WRA board decided to increase the current $35 per member voluntary contribution to $50 on the annual dues bill.

According to the National Association of REALTORS® (NAR), RPAC at the national level was formed in 1969. According to NAR, a group of “forward-thinking members of NAR sought the ability to harness the political clout of what would become one of the largest trade associations in the country. From this, the Real Estate Political Education Committee (REPEC) was launched. Later, it would become the National Association of REALTORS® Political Action Committee, or RPAC.”

In its first year, REPEC had 300 contributors and raised $28,000. Today, RPAC has more than 400,000 contributors investing over $9 million to RPAC at the federal level and $36 million at all three levels of the association, according to NAR figures.

In 1970, the Wisconsin RPAC was formed under the leadership of then-WRA chairman Otto Bytof. In its first year, the RPAC fundraising campaign raised $7,000. Fast forward to today, and the overall success with RPAC fundraising is remarkable. Total RPAC and Direct Giver fundraising in 2018 netted $633,000. From its humble beginnings in 1970, RPAC, and now Direct Giver, fundraising has become the bedrock political program for REALTORS® across the Badger State.

What has RPAC accomplished?

It may be tempting to look at the orderly way with which you can practice real Estate in Wisconsin and assume that today’s marketplace evolved naturally and that lawmakers had your interest in mind all along. But that’s not the case.
